(Psalm, 37:5)

Trust in God is what get's people of faith through difficult times. His help may come in different forms; one of which is through the support and service of other people, which is apparent in this newsletter through the amazing work of people of faith and/or no faith.

Please note, I have changed my name by Deed Poll, so if you receive any correspondence from Kawther Hashmi, it is not a fraud or an imposter, just me with a new name and email address! 😊

Is the UK Being Fair to Immigrants?

The Woking Debates team held this debate where 39 people joined on zoom.

Councillor Ayesha Azad, deputy leader of Woking Borough Council, began the debate. She was a child immigrant coming here with her family. Her father was amazed by the generosity of the British people and she has found our society to be open, tolerant and dynamic. We have a fair immigration system in place here and we have sufficient resources to cope with the migration we have. The Ugandan Indians and the offer to Hong Kong residents are examples of our fairness. In Woking there are 49 Syrian refugee families. Surrey County Council has taken in many unaccompanied minors.

Donovan Blair was born here but his father and mother came from Jamaica. In Jamaica they were a carpenter and teacher respectively. At school they received a British education which included little about their home island. They felt it was their duty to come to Britain to help rebuild it after WW2 and when they arrived they found they knew more about Britain than many British people. Finding work was no problem but finding accommodation was really difficult as many rooms advertised No Blacks, No Irish, No Dogs. Donovan's father who came here first had to live in an underground station for the first two months. It was a time of race riots and killings in Notting Hill. He found work in construction. Donovan's parents instilled their values into him but he has never felt truly accepted. The Government has created a hostile environment and sanitised history. History is written by the conqueror and by the people that do the harm. Imagine being in a West African city insulted just for being white. Attitudes are improving. These are complex issues.

Kayte Cable set up a small charity in Woking and Guildford working with unaccompanied and trafficked children. Often they are escaping civil war. Their journeys here have been long and difficult. Aged between 18-25 they can be living in foster care, hostels or supported care. Children often have to wait to the next educational year to receive formal education. They might not be literate in English but they need English GCSE to progress. The charity tries to combat their social isolation as it is difficult for them to build networks. They live in fear of the police, religious groups and the Home Office. Under the 1951 Refugee Convention they cannot be sent back to an unsafe country but what is safe? The system is slow to process refugees and meanwhile they are not allowed to work. They lack hope and many suffer from mental health issues. If their processing is delayed until they are 18 they will be treated as an adult when it is harder to be accepted by the system. Home Office interviews are often hostile. Interpreters are often not very good. They can face unlimited detention. They should be allowed to work and contribute to society. Lack of money leaves them more vulnerable to criminals.

Waleed Hassan, an immigration solicitor said he smiled when he saw the title of the debate as the country is so obviously unfair to some immigrants. The rules are discriminatory and they should be fair to everyone. He has represented an African national who has been refused entry three times while a Canadian does not even need a visa to come here. The Home Office has a culture of disbelief towards refugees. They do not believe a person who is a homosexual facing persecution or a person who has changed their religion. A husband has to earn £18,600 to bring their partner over.

Waleed believes that politicians are using immigrants as scapegoats. Grenfell and Windrush show this clearly. Education is crucial. The Life in the UK test has many historical questions that most British citizens would struggle to answer.

Settled status was created to clear the backlog of cases. This needs to be an automatic process without the need to prove that a person has lived here as often they have not the documentation to prove it. The Government issues a link to prove a person has the right to remain in this country but many people do not recognise this. Employers will be fined £20,000 for each case and landlords can be fined £3000. Ayesha told us this is the same way that other EU countries operate.

Ann-Marie Barker asked what was the most significant policy change the Government could make that could improve this situation. Ayesha went for changing the system so asylum seekers are able to work. Waleed for changing the points based immigration system so it is the same for all nationalities, Donovan thought we need a cohesive solution that is defensible and non political.

Our MP, Jonathan Lord, was present and assured us he would take the views expressed on board.

Faith Covid Response

FaithAction have been working very hard during the last three months to reach faith communities up and down the country and feed their ideas, needs, and opinions back to government as the situation changes; as restrictions have been lifted, as different religious festivals come and go, and as local lockdowns are being imposed in different parts of the country.

After eight weeks of numerous focus groups, surgery calls, one-on-one phone calls, and joining various interfaith roundtables and webinars, FaithAction have put together a quick 3-point summary of some of the main points of interest from each faith community recently.

To read these please visit: <https://www.faithaction.net/blog/2020/08/20/faith-covid-project-update/>

Weekly Coronavirus Intelligence Reports for Surrey now available

Surrey County Council is producing weekly intelligence reports that provide up to date coronavirus data for Surrey. They include details of any outbreaks, increases in cases and our current R number. It also provides a breakdown by district and borough council area and a comparison to our neighbouring local authorities in the South East.

Interfaith Buddies

The scheme involves two people of different faiths or of a faith and of a non-religious belief:

- keeping in touch on a weekly basis during September and October.
- choosing or developing questions on which to share their thoughts and experiences; and
- during Inter Faith Week, sharing online or at a socially distanced event, in an agreed way, some reflections on what they have gained from this.

How can we improve Surrey's Local Offer website?

All local authorities must have a Local Offer website that provides information and the details of services available for children and young people with Special Educational Needs and Disabilities (SEND) and their families. If you have used Surrey's Local Offer website, you may like to complete a consultation that asks for views and experiences of doing so: www.surreysays.co.uk/csf/localoffer

How could Surrey be a better place for autistic people?

Education, Care and Health services in Surrey are carrying out a public consultation, so that you can tell them the best way to support autistic people of all ages and their families. Your feedback will shape what goes into their all age autism strategy. The strategy will help to determine what services they offer to meet the needs of autistic people and change the ways our community welcome and include those with autism.

For more details and to complete the survey visit: www.surreysays.co.uk/csf/autismstrategy

Environmental Working Party

Working People of Faith are hoping to run an Environmental Working Party on Horsell Common on Saturday the 26th September from 10am until 12 noon.

We will be following Covid-19 procedures and even though we will be outside, everyone will be expected to stay 2 metres apart. People should bring their own refreshments, masks, gloves and boots. The tools will be sanitised beforehand but sanitiser and bottles of water will be provided so that you can sanitise your hands and then wash them in the water, which will be shop bought and therefore clean and sterile.

To begin with, people will be asked to wear masks when we are just gathering and then take them off whilst we are working.

As usual, we will only be told which area we will be working in nearer the time. But even with these precautions in place, it will be a good event as always.

So if you are interested in coming along to help save the heather on Horsell Common and all that means for bio-diversity, please email: administrator@wpof.org.uk
