January 2022

"It was through the Hindu religion that I learnt to respect Christianity and Islam."
(Mahatma Ghandi)

Climate change can be said to be the biggest and most urgent challenge facing humanity and this is reflected in what faith communities as well as wider groups have been focusing on in this newsletter. It is great to see collaboration and partnership working in this area; read about it on page 4 and under upcoming events.

Godalming Unitarians Mark Holocaust Memorial Day

On Sunday 23rd January Godalming Unitarians held a Zoom service to mark Holocaust Memorial Day (which falls on 27th January). It was led by Interfaith minister and friend of Godalming Unitarians - Edie Campbell - who's grandfather received the 'Righteous amongst the nations' award for assisting and saving the lives of Jewish people in Holland. The service focussed on the inspirational life and writings of Etty Hillesum 'the Mystic of the Holocaust', 1914-1943 (Amsterdam - Westerbork - Auschwitz).

She wrote: "I am ready to bear witness in any situation and unto death that life is beautiful and meaningful."

"What matters is not whether we preserve our lives at any cost, but how we preserve them."

"As if suffering - in whatever form and however it may come to us - were not also part of human existence."

"Against every fresh horror, we shall put up one more piece of love and goodness."

"Ultimately what matters most is to bear the pain... and to keep a small corner of one's soul unsullied, come what may."

"God is not accountable to us, but we are to Him."

On the transport to Auschwitz, where she was murdered on 30 November 1943, Etty wrote: "We left the camp singing."

What is Gender? Does it need to affect how we relate to each other?

The 53rd Woking Debate was held on Zoom and streamed on Facebook and attended by over 40 people on Saturday 15 January 2022.

Bea McDonald opened the Debate. She is a transgender woman and spoke about the science of gender and reminded us that science is the pursuit of questions. In each cell of our body we have 46 chromosomes in 23 pairs. One pair decides our sex. For 99.5% of us this is an adequate explanation but behind this there is a lot of complex biology and psychology. Our sex relates to our genital configuration and our gender and our sex can and do usually overlap but not always. The World Health Organisation describes gender as a social construct. In our bodies the Y chromosome provides the switch converting some of us to males. There are many parts to the Y chromosome but these are only active for a short time and conditions have to be right for them to operate. Other genes then prevent the body switching back. There are no exclusively male or female hormones. Ranges vary between individuals and male and female.

Similarly there are no exclusive characteristics for males and females. Aggression has a difference of 0.6 of a standard deviation between men and women while empathy has a 0.8% difference. There is no difference in IQ but females do tend to do better on verbal tests while males do better on spatial tests. It has been found that very young children girls will stare longer at actual faces while boys will stare longer at a faces in a picture on a mobile. A brain scan cannot tell if the person is male or female.

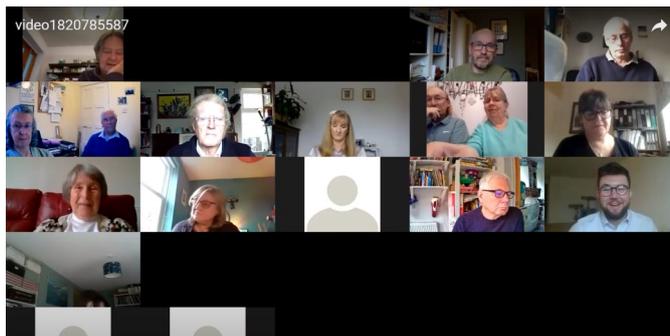

0.3% of births are inter sex or 1 in 3,000. To put that in perspective the problem of blood clots with COVID vaccines occurred in 1 in 200,000 cases. Biology describes how things are.

Evan Ridgeon then spoke. He told us that gender and sex should be separated when we discuss this issue as we are all on a spectrum between male and female. Where we peak on that spectrum matches our physical sex. Many people instead of having two sex chromosomes have three - xxy or xyy. Gender has three important elements = how people feel, how society recognises you and how the law sees you. Evan grew up as a girl but a Tom boy. He felt masculine and was fortunate to grow up in a liberal family. Legally he has now changed his name, his passport and his driving license. However he has been unable to change his status at the tax office which only recognises male and female. To change your gender there you need to apply to a panel which you will never meet. The fee to change was reduced last year from £140 to £15. When Evan accomplishes this he will then apply for a new birth certificate.

We can change how we think about gender. In our language we can express gender neutral in you and they. They has been used in the singular for a long time when unsure of someone's gender. One can have xx genes but identify as a man.

Questions and discussion followed.

Surrey Interfaith Forum explores Faith and Climate Change

The Surrey Interfaith Forum was inaugurated on Thursday 2nd September 2021 to harness and build on the work that has been carried out during the pandemic with faith leaders and partners to support the communities of Surrey.

On Thursday 22nd January, Katie Sargent, (Surrey Greener Future Group Manager) shared a presentation on Surrey's Greener Future. She said transport and buildings are the largest carbon emitters in Surrey. SCC are aiming for the Council to be net carbon zero by 2030 and for the County to be net zero carbon by 2050 with an aim to reduce 1.3m tonnes of carbon across Surrey by 2025. The SCC Climate Change Delivery Plan has recently been endorsed by Cabinet and includes 75 initiatives to help achieve these targets. Part of the delivery plan is to engage communities; this includes faith communities, to help reduce carbon. Katie gave some examples of work SCC have done to date.

Peter Harwood, Director of Mission from the Diocese of Guildford and Chair of the Diocesan Net Zero Working Group shared the Diocese of Guildford's plan and progress to achieve zero carbon by 2030. Peter highlighted faith motivates us to take action and the greener futures work is rooted in the fundamentals of faith. He said the Diocese is currently measuring their carbon footprint. There are 30,000 people connected to the Diocese of Guildford, 159 parishes, 220 houses and 86 schools and bringing about changes across these could have significant positive impact. The aim is to bring change to buildings and behaviour.

A page is being dedicated to Faith and Climate Change on the Surrey Faith Links website, resources coming soon!

The city in Pakistan where church, mosque and temple stand side by side

Located on the city's Shikarpur Road, this religious complex representing three different faiths is considered by locals to be a hub of interfaith harmony and tolerance in a time of growing religious extremism. These places of worship are built in a row.

Any evening, worship takes place in all the three holy places. In the temple, bells are rung and hymns are sung over loudspeakers, while in the church, the sound of religious songs is heard. The Muslim call to prayer, the adhan, resounds from the mosque.

Sharon Yousaf, pastor of the Baptist church in Jacobabad told Independent Urdu: "The three places of worship are together and their walls are side by side. But despite this, no untoward incident has taken place since the establishment of Pakistan. Believers of all three religions respect each other's places of worship and treat each other with respect. "During religious festivals, we invite one another to join in. This place is a perfect example of religious harmony. If anyone is facing a problem, we all help them regardless of faith."
